

Thousands Gather Throughout County Over Week-end For Community Memorial Services

Thousands of Adams countians gathered for traditional Memorial services over the week-end in a dozen communities. Many followed the same pattern of veterans' rituals, the strewing of flowers, patriotic music and an address. Chilly weather made topcoats more comfortable than the summer garb that usually appears at Memorial Day.

A roundup of accounts of the various Memorial services as gathered by reporters for The Gettysburg Times follows:

Hunterstown

"Democracy is not a luxury of civilization but its responsibility," Judge Harvey A. Gross of York county declared to a shivering audience of more than 300 persons in the Great Conewago Presbyterian cemetery near Hunterstown at annual Memorial services Saturday evening.

"We cannot live forever on the freedoms purchased for us at Lexington, and Gettysburg and the far-flung battlefields of the two world wars," the York orphans court judge asserted. "Their sacrifices won't save us unless we are willing to re-purchase for our own day our own freedom through sacrificial living."

The exercises in the cemetery followed a parade from the town in which the Gettysburg high school band led the Sunday school children of the community to the ancient burial ground. There, after flowers had been strewn over the graves that included Revolutionary and Civil war dead, the Gettysburg Sons of Union Veterans conducted their Memorial Day ritual. Commander G. Henry Roth and Chaplain T. J. Winebrenner participated. The SUV firing squad fired three volleys and taps was sounded by a bugler from the band.

Judge Sheely Presides

Exercises at the rostrum were presided over by Judge W. C. Sheely and opened with "America the Beautiful" by the band. The invocation was given by the Rev. Herman Beatty, supply pastor of the Great Conewago church after which the St. Matthews Lutheran Brotherhood choruses of 18 voices from York sang:

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "When You Know Jesus" under the direction of H. Oscar Scott.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was given by State Senator Donald P. McPherson and then Judge Sheely presented Judge Gross. After his address, the York chorus sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Elmer Nunemaker, pastor of the Hunterstown Methodist church and the exercises closed with the "Star Spangled Banner."

A band concert and festival followed during the evening.

Bendersville

"If there are to be no more new heart-rending disasters, nations must turn from the god of power to the Almighty God, who is both loving and powerful," declared Rev. Howard J. McCorney, chaplain and faculty member of Gettysburg college, speaking at the Memorial service Saturday afternoon in Bendersville.

"Man," said the Rev. Mr. McCorney, "is faced with a dilemma. In his concern over security and power he has unlocked vast storehouses of energy which have only made him more insecure."

Rev. McCorney stated that security of power is a myth and often has no morality. "In his search for power," he continued, "man often convinces himself that his actions are right." He cited the Hitler regime as an example.

L. C. Taylor Presides
The speaker explained that brotherhood between nations must come about through confidence and friendliness, not force and compulsion. "While we should be suspicious of Russian motives," he said, "we should still try to understand the Russian as a person."

A large crowd braved chilling winds to watch the parade and take part in the services held in the cemetery. Marching in the parade were the Upper Adams County High School band, the Gardner and Bendersville Scout troops, the Ira E. Lady Post 262, the Bendersville Fire company, the flag-decked fire trucks of Bendersville and Aspers, and the children of the community, who spread flowers over the graves of the soldiers.

Leighton C. Taylor presided at the service. He spoke briefly on the origin of Memorial Day and praised the community for its faithful observance of this day. He stated that the nation should prepare its young people for good citizenship in this critical period.

Rev. Clarence L. Chubb gave the invocation; Dale Crum delivered the Gettysburg address and Dr. O. D. Coble gave the benediction.

Wenksville

"East and West are now engaged in a life and death struggle representing totalitarianism against democracy," warned Rev. Dr. Norman S. Wolf of Fairfield as he addressed

BOY HAS BOTH LEGS BROKEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Donald Spangler, 15, of East Berlin, suffered fractures of both legs, a fractured shoulder and internal injuries when an automobile in which he was a passenger overturned at 10:50 p. m. Saturday night three miles west of East Berlin on the Heidlersburg road, according to a state police report.

Police said a station wagon driven by Richard D. Sell, 16, of East Berlin, went off the right side of the highway, struck an embankment and overturned. Sell and two other passengers, Glenn Myers, Thomasville R. 1, and Elgin Will, Dover R. 2, escaped injury. Spangler was removed in an ambulance to the Hanover general hospital. Damage to the station wagon was estimated at $300.

One person was slightly injured and approximately $600 damage was done when a car operated by Norman Pittinger, 36, Spring Grove R. 3, crashed into the side of a Reading railroad freight engine at the crossing just south of Sheffer's park, Biggerlerville road, Sunday evening at 9:40 o'clock.

Raymond Border, Hanover, was treated at the Warner hospital for a laceration of the scalp. Three occupants of the car were uninjured. Pittinger is reported to have failed to see the warning crossing signals flashing at the time of the accident. State police are conducting an investigation.

COURT OKAYS SETTLEMENT

The Adams county court Saturday approved settlement of the action in trespass brought by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strickhouser, Gettysburg R. D. for their son, Franchot, against the Borough of Gettysburg and Paul W. Little.

Under the compromise the borough and Little will pay $5,000, divided as follows: $370 to Drs. Bruce N. Wolf and Roy W. Gifford; $645.45 to the Warner hospital; $2,975.55 to the Gettysburg National bank as guardian for Franchot Strickhouser and $1,000 to the law firm of Swope, Brown and Swope for their services.

The Strickhouser youngster was injured September 4, 1947, when the wheel of his bicycle caught in a separation between two plates in the roadbed on West Stevens street and he was thrown under the wheels of Little's truck. The settlement approved by the court listed no division of the $5,000 between the borough and Little. Borough officials said today that the entire matter was in the hands of the company by which the borough is insured against such claims and said they had no idea of what division may have been made.

The court Saturday appointed Attorney J. Francis Yake, Jr. of Shermansville, P. S. Orner and W. D. Sheely, Arendtsville, as viewers to assess damages caused by the relocation of the Lincoln highway. The appointment was upon petition of Laura E. and Gertrude M. Cease, both of near Caledonia. The bond of Joseph Goehner as tax collector of Menallen township was approved.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT
Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Hocken-smith, Gettysburg R. 5, announce the birth of a daughter at the Warner hospital Saturday.

Text Of Rankin's Address

The following is the complete text of the address delivered this afternoon by Clyde E. Rankin, Sr., deputy adjutant general of Pennsylvania, at exercises in the Gettysburg National cemetery.

"I am honored, indeed, to have been invited to talk to you on this occasion.

"We are gathered today to honor our War Dead—the men and women who have been called upon to give their lives for the preservation of our freedom. No one can forget the tremendous sacrifice these immortals made on July 1, 2, and 3, 1863, on this historic ground, when they gave their full last measure of devotion to preserve the Union. These United States, the greatest nation of free people on earth, is a testimonial for all time—that their efforts were not in vain.

"To the Sons of Veterans go the plaudits of an appreciative Nation for keeping alive interest and perpetuating the glorious deeds of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Remember Their Sacrifices
"It is highly fitting that we should, on this day each year, pause to keep alive the memory of the sacrifices these sons and daughters have made.

Coollest May 30 On Record Here: Today's Low 40

The mercury dropped to within eight degrees of the freezing mark in Gettysburg this morning and thereby set an all-time local record for frigidty on May 30.

This morning's low reading of 40 degrees never has been equalled since complete weather records were initiated here in 1904.

The nearest approach for any previous May 30 was a 42-degree reading in 1906; a 43-degree mark set in 1913 and a 44 in 1907. Last year, May 30 temperatures ranged between a minimum of 65 and a high of 76 degrees.

Temperatures To Rise
Temperatures in the 90's on this date are about as unusual as May 30 mornings that are in the 40's, the local weather records show. Only three Memorial Days since 1904 have seen 90-degree temperatures and the hottest of them was in 1919 when the high was 96.

While a major portion of the nation had showers to look forward to, Pennsylvania enjoyed warmer and generally clear Memorial Day weather, the Associated Press said.

The cold spell that has gripped the state for the last two days gave way to rising temperatures with the mercury expected to hover in the low 70's or low 80's.

Cloudiness marred the picnic and parade schedules of some of the state's residents but no rain was due until tomorrow.

Special Police Aid Saturday Traffic

Special police, sworn in last Thursday, assisted members of the regular borough police force for three hours Saturday night in directing traffic on Center Square. Burgess C. A. Heiges said today they would be used every Saturday night henceforth.

A police officer was stationed at each of the four intersections to regulate both vehicular and pedestrian traffic. The special officers included Clarence Cluck, Paul Anzen-gruber and Luther Stevens. They worked from 7 to 10 p. m.

Regular officers on duty included Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster, Paul Sheeler, Daniel Miller and Ralph Fissel. Harpster and Miller directed traffic with the special officers.

LITTLESTOWN BACCALAUREATE SERVICE HELD AT LITTLESTOWN

Littlestown high school auditorium was filled almost to capacity on Sunday evening for the annual baccalaureate service conducted by the Littlestown ministerium. "This Adventurous Life" was the theme of the Baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Grantas E. Hoopert, pastor of the Centenary Methodist church.

Basing his theme on St. John 10:10, "I am come that ye might have life and that ye might have it abundantly," Rev. Hoopert said: "Life is an adventure in three directions, in living, in knowing and in faith. To live an abundant life, we must live adventurously. Such living consists of establishing order in all areas of life, so that its blessings and privileges may be used to the fullest and so that pain and friction may be reduced to a minimum. That is what Jesus meant when He said, 'I am come that ye might have life and that ye might have it abundantly.'"

Enter By Two Aisles
The class sang "Fairest Lord Jesus," as their processional with Miss Evelyn Harget as pianist. The procession entered the auditorium by both aisles. On the north aisle was the Christian flag carried by Everett Spangler, the Ministerium and school board, the school flag carried by Richard Mehring, and the seniors (Please Turn to Page 5)

GAR MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD HERE ON SUNDAY

"The great work of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic is meaningless to us, unless we carry on the tradition they started, unless we carry out the unfinished task begun by them," the Rev. Clyde R. Brown, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, declared Sunday afternoon at the annual GAR ritualistic Memorial program held by the local Sons of Union Veterans at the post home on East Middle street.

"Speaking here at Gettysburg, Abraham Lincoln declared clearly the nature of the struggle that was taking place. 'Now we are engaged in a great civil war testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.' He did not say it was a question of whether any nation would endure, he did not say that the union must be preserved no matter what, he said it was a question of whether a nation so conceived and so dedicated could long endure. And what was this conception and this dedication? It was 'conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.' That is what the struggle was about."

Work Not Finished

"The brave men who fought the Civil War were carrying out that work, to guarantee that a nation based on liberty and equality could continue to exist. Their work is not finished, for we have not yet attained the perfection of that ideal. We still are plagued with inequalities and discrimination. We still do not give full liberty and full equality to all of our citizens."

"Lincoln said 'it is to us the living to carry on the great work they have so far advanced.' That is our work. These memorial services have meaning only if we dedicate ourselves to that task. The struggle of the men who fought the civil war has meaning only as we carry out the work they began. For what will be the value of their achievement if we reject the work that they outlined and initiated."

Officers of the post, assisted by the audience, carried out the ritual memorial program of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Rev. Willis R. Doyle, pastor of the Prince of Peace Episcopal church here, delivered the invocation and benediction and Miss Elizabeth Ann Sheffer accompanied the singing at the piano.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Grove, York Springs R. 1, announce the birth of a son at the Carlisle hospital on Friday.

Brothers Inspired By Dignity And Reverence Of Battlefield

"The historic significance and the scenic beauty of the Gettysburg battlefield and the Gettysburg National cemetery are without parallel," in the opinion of Henry M. Kropf, Pittsburgh, and his brother Clement Kropf, of Scotsdale, Pa.

The two men visit this historic community every year and spend from three days to a week here, devoting most of their time to walking over the battlefield and through the cemetery.

"We have never seen the field and cemetery in a more attractive condition," the brothers told a reporter for The Times this morning.

"There is a feeling of reverence and dignity about this shrine. There is not the commercial aspect so general at other sacred shrines. Everything here seems on a higher plane with a deep feeling of respect for what took place here.

"The entire area is well kept and preserved. There is a noticeable absence of debris and rubbish about the place. The grass is well mowed and the scenic beauty of the field is as attractive as one will find anywhere.

"More people should visit Gettysburg and spend more time here. This applies, likewise, to the town itself. It is clean and nice and the people are hospitable and courteous," the brothers chorused.

The two men walk over the field, read the inscription on the memorials and invariably comment on the "decey of the place" and the inspiration of the significance of what took place here.

Both men believe that hikers' clubs should be encouraged to make Gettysburg an annual objective.

Gettysburg today held its 81st annual Memorial observance. With flags flying and marching bands and commemorative services, Gettysburg carried out once again the traditional observance that started in 1868 when members of the local Grand Army of the Republic first marched to the National cemetery here to memorialize their fellow comrades-in-arms.

With traditional pageantry, the parade moved through the streets of town this afternoon to the cemetery where nearly 1,000 school pupils, dressed in their Sunday best, placed flowers on the graves of 3,500 Civil War dead. At the same time 400 Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves and 4-H club members strewed flowers on the graves of World War I and II dead within the cemetery.

Strength Is Freedom

At the rostrum the several thousand persons gathered for the occasion heard Clyde E. Rankin, Sr., deputy adjutant general of Pennsylvania and past state department commander of the American Legion, declare: "The great source of America's strength is our freedom, our individual initiative . . . those who seek to destroy our power and freedom are concentrating their attacks on this keystone of our success. They know that if it collapses, the entire structure will fall."

He pointed out, "It is highly fitting that we should, on this day each year, pause to keep alive the memory of the sacrifices these sons and daughters (who fought in our nation's wars) have made. To them, more than any single group of Americans, we owe the fact that today we are living in the enjoyment of the rights and privileges that are the essence of true freedom. But it is not enough to remember, gratefully, the sacrifices they made for us. Unless we are as ready as they were to fulfill whatever duties our privileges demand of us, we will let slip from our grasp the very things they died to preserve."

Serious Responsibility
Terming "poisonous propaganda" as the greatest menace to America, the speaker added, "the only protection against this form of attack is a determined and continuous counter-attack, a barrage of truth which will completely nullify the bombardments of falsehoods to which the American people are being constantly subjected."

"Many of our people simply do not realize that Liberty is not a permanent right, but something to be cherished, protected and at times, defended. . . . When one considers that even without the threat of aggression the job of making Democracy live is not easy, it can be seen how tremendous is our present responsibility."

The rostrum exercises brought the day's activities to a close. The observance began with a parade from Meade school to the cemetery, starting at 2:30 o'clock. In the line of march were the Gettysburg high school band and public and parochial school children, carrying flowers. Dr. Lloyd C. Keefeauver, superintendent of schools, headed the children's division. Grand Marshal LeRoy H. Winebrenner headed the procession followed by his aides Arthur W. Warman and Julius Swope.

Second Division

Leading the second division of the parade were aides Carl Oyler and Leonard Sheeler, and Col. R. W. Daniels, commanding officer of the Letterkenny Ordnance Depot. The Blue and Gray band followed the aides after which came armored cars, jeeps and half-tracks of the 833rd Ordnance company and Troop A, 104th Mechanized Reconnaissance Squadron, Pennsylvania National Guard. Following were the Veterans of Foreign Wars drum corps of Waynesboro, members of the VPW and United States War Veterans, the American Legion Drum corps of York and members of the American Legion. The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves and 4-H clubs completed the parade, followed by the speaker, guests and committee.

But the Ford Motor Co. estimated it may be two weeks before full production is resumed in all its plants and 106,000 employees are back on the job.

An agreement leaving the main issue in the speed-up dispute to arbitration was reached early Sunday after days of steady negotiations. About 65,000 UAW members employed in the St. Louis and Lincoln plants ratified it by big margins at meetings later in the day.

Thousands Gather Throughout County Over Week-end For Community Memorial Services

the Carlisle radio station. "You have come here to honor those in past wars who have given their all that we might have freedom," Rev. Lee said. The Greeks and Romans strewed flowers on the tombs of their dead. Our own observance of Memorial Day began at Columbus, Miss., shortly after the Civil War, when a group of women took flowers to the graves of both the Union and Confederate dead.

General John A. Logan commander of the GAR, asked for an edict setting aside the day in honor of the dead and Congress established May 30 as Memorial Day in 1874. "We were told in World War I that it was a war to outlaw all wars. Wherein have we failed? Communism is not the greatest enemy of America. We face an enemy more insidious, the danger of shutting Christ out of our homes, our schools, our churches and our lives. There is no need for us here tonight to hold another funeral service for those who have already had the last rites of the church said for them. It is rather for us to grasp the torch for which they so nobly sacrificed their lives, and to carry on."

AME Zion
"If we are to keep in memory the great sacrifices which those who gave their lives in the wars of this country made, then we must dedicate ourselves to waging peace instead of war." The Rev. Paul Whitmoyer, director of the Gettysburg Recreation association, said in a Memorial address at exercises held by the Dorsey-Stanton post of the American Legion in St. Paul's AME Zion church Sunday afternoon.

The program opened at 3 o'clock with an organ prelude, followed by the processional, "God of Our Fathers," and the responsive reading led by the pastor, the Rev. J. O. Fountain, pastor. The audience joined in singing "America" followed by prayer by the pastor.

A vocal group gave the selection "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." Joseph P. Wansel, commander of the Dorsey-Stanton Legion post, gave the address of welcome, and a selection, "In Flanders Fields," was recited by Mrs. Margaret Nutter. Following the offering, Mrs. Catherine Thompson sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Not Insurmountable Problem
The speaker was introduced by the Rev. Fountain.

"When we ally ourselves to God and Christ, the task of waging peace does not seem an insurmountable one," Rev. Whitmoyer said. "What can we do? This becomes a personal thing. We need to ally ourselves to the Great Spirit that is without time. We need something greater than the best that mere man can give."

"We are on the verge of a most glorious future, or the end of civilization. We need to ally ourselves with something greater than any plan that man can conceive, a solution that is higher and greater than the sword."

The program closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and the benediction by Rev. Fountain.

The audience then paused with bowed heads for 30 seconds of silent prayer in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice in both the first and second World wars.

Arendtsville
A crowd estimated at more than 300 persons attended the annual Memorial services in hilltop Greenmount cemetery at the western edge of Arendtsville Sunday afternoon when Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, member of the faculty of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary delivered the address. His theme was "Hilltop Living."

"America has no greater mission than to make America Christian," Dr. Hoover declared as he urged upon his audience "noble, faithful and sacrificial living in our homes, our communities and our nation." He asserted that the law of human kindness transforms life and is always stronger than the law of force. "Let us hope and work and pray that we may build the kind of lives that will make our nation safe. Let us consecrate the battlefield of our

Eisler To Receive Communist Welcome

Berlin, May 30 (AP) — German Communists prepared a warm welcome for Gerhart Eisler today by naming the fugitive Red on a list of 400 candidates for the Russian-approved German people's council for eastern Germany.

The 52-year-old German-born Communist leader is expected to reach here via Poland in a few days. Eisler, who was freed by a British court which refused a United States request for his extradition last week, has not lived in Germany since the Nazi era.

The list drawn up by the Communists described the alleged top Communist agent as a professor at Leipzig university.

The people's congress prepared today to wind up its two-day meeting in the East Berlin opera house by ratifying a people's constitution for a "German Democratic Republic."

Calls Ambulance Before Accident

Maidenhead, Eng., May 30 (AP) — Dennis Clifford went into a phone booth today to call an ambulance to the scene of an auto crash. Another car came along, dodged the two which had figured in the collision, and smashed into the phone booth. Clifford was taken to the hospital in the ambulance he had called, along with one victim of the original accident.

Mrs. O. P. House, Bendersville, had as guests over the week-end her sons, Spencer and family, of Conestoga, Pa. and Fred and family of Mechanicsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Quay Taylor, Hyattsville, Md., were also guests of Mrs. House.

Parade Precedes Services

The exercises at the cemetery were preceded by a procession from the square led by the Biglerville high school band followed by Sunday school children and a color guard and members of the Ira E. Lady post of the American Legion and the Conewago post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Standing near the grave of Ira Lady, for whom the Legion post was named, the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, Arendtsville Lutheran pastor in his chaplain's uniform of an army major, offered prayer and a squad of veterans under command of Lt. Evers Rinehart fired three volleys over the graves. Then Luther Lady and Luther Lawver of the Lady post placed flowers at the Lady grave and that of Raymond E. Hershey, a World War I veteran who died in 1919. Taps and an echo from the town concluded those rites.

P. S. Orner presided at the rostrum where there were selections by the Biglerville band. The invocation was given by the Rev. Nevil R. Prantz, Arendtsville Reformed pastor, and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was recited by Howard Shockey, Joan Staub recited "In Flanders Fields." The Rev. Mr. Berkheimer pronounced the benediction and the services closed with the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band.

Littlestown

Several hundred residents of Littlestown and vicinity gathered on Sunday evening in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown, to pay tribute to those who died in defense of their country, at the annual Memorial services sponsored by the Ocker Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion. Speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, pastor of Redeemer's Reformed church, a chaplain of World War II and also the post chaplain.

Speaking on the subject, "They Have Not Died in Vain," he said: "Now that our wars have ceased, we gather to pay tribute to the sacred memory of our valiant dead. They have not died in vain—they who protected our country from the ravage of war. They have also brought to an end international law which governed by unilateral agreements and have ushered in a new era of international law governed by pacts, alliances and councils. These dead have been instrumental in protecting the American spirit in charity and now it is up to the living to propagate to all the concepts that have made these United States worth defending."

Post Commander Clarence J. Krichen, Sr., presided. The invocation was given by the Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. "A Dirge" was played by the Littlestown high school band under the direction of Paul Harner. Following the address there was a military salute by a firing squad composed of Dewey Baumgardner, captain, Noah Brown, William Burgoon, Edgar Wisotzky, Fred Blocher, Charles Brindiger, Lloyd Wintroe, Luther Hankey and Lawrence Dooley, members of the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, VFW. The color guard was Burnell Keagy, Claude Snyder and Joseph Redding. Taps was sounded by members from the H. H. Bair Post No. 14, Hanover American Legion Drum corps. The Rev. Kenneth D. James, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, pronounced the benediction.

With Burgess Charles R. Mehning and the borough council at the head of the parade, the following was the line of march: Legion post colors; Harold H. Bair Legion Post No. 14 Drum corps, Hanover; Legion veterans; Hanover Post No. 2506, VFW Drum corps; gold star mothers and local VFW auxiliary; Westminster

Camp Lee, Virginia, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Starnier, of Aspers.

Mr. and Mrs. Betty Stough, of Le-moyne, spent the week-end with Mrs. Stough's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Routsong, of Bendersville.

VFW No. 467 drum corps; VFW vets and colors; Littlestown Cub and Boy Scouts; Littlestown high school band; school children; Brownies and Girls Scouts. The school children carried bouquets of flowers which were scattered over the graves at the cemetery.

When the parade reached the Littlestown honor roll on South Queen street, the column halted for a brief ceremony, when Commander Krichen and Mrs. Claude Snyder, representing the local Legion post and auxiliary, and Mrs. Louise Sentz, president of the ladies' Auxiliary to the VFW post, and John Bloom, commander of the local VFW post, each placed a wreath in front of the honor roll. There was a brief prayer by the Rev. Mr. Reynolds and the sounding of taps by representatives from the Hanover Legion drum corps.

Fairfield

Approximately 500 persons attended the annual Memorial services at the Fairfield Union cemetery at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at which the principal speaker was Frederick E. Tilberg, historian of the National Park Service, Gettysburg.

Numbers by the Gettysburg high school band preceded the invocation, given by the Rev. Dr. Norman S. Wolf, pastor of the Fairfield Lutheran church. Two selections were sung by the Fairfield octet, followed by the recitation of the Gettysburg Address by Edwin Currens. Another number by the band and a selection by the octet followed.

"Americans were nurtured in the cradle of American freedom," Dr. Tilberg said, in his memorial address. "Generation after generation have been forced to lay aside their plowshares to fight for our freedom. For every man that war has inspired, however, many more have been degraded."

Must Plan for Peace

"Let us concentrate our strength and moral forces against the forces of aggression. If we do not, we must surely become involved in another war. The surest way to close the door to war is a sincere plan for peace."

Referring to Gettysburg, Dr. Tilberg declared that it has become more than a battlefield. "It is a shrine to a nation which once broken asunder, is now united again," he said.

"The sacrifices of those who fell at Gettysburg and at other battles in the Civil War, and in all our wars, are the incentives for us to solve the problems of our time. The door is open to men everywhere to advance the cause of democracy."

Frank Moore was master of ceremonies and introduced the speaker. Dr. Tilberg's address was followed by a number by the band and the benediction by Dr. Wolf, and the sounding of taps.

Residents of Fairfield and vicinity decorated the graves of their dead prior to the program. There was no parade.

Biglerville

A warning that the living present and the future may be forgotten in memorializing the glories of the past was sounded by the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, Arendtsville Lutheran pastor and World War II army chaplain, in the annual Memorial address in the Biglerville cemetery Sunday afternoon.

A crowd of about 500 persons gathered for the exercises that followed a procession from the center of town. The Biglerville high school and Blue and Gray bands of Gettysburg led the column of school children and veterans of the two world wars to the windswept hilltop for impressive ceremonies.

The Rev. Mr. Berkheimer, wearing his chaplain's uniform, used stirring words to describe the wartime sacrifices of the nation's wars and then asked his audience to think-of these sacrifices in terms of the present and the future "so that the sacrifices of the past may not be in vain."

Veterans Conduct Rites
"We cannot discharge our responsibilities lightly. Eternal vigilance is required to be worthy of the name 'American' and to keep our nation free and strong," he concluded.

The American Legion ritual was conducted by First Vice Commander Earl E. Ecker of the Ira Lady post and Chaplain Luther Lady. Then Lady and Luther Lawver placed flowers on the graves of three dead of World War I and the new grave of Donald Starry, who served in World War II. There were three volleys by a firing squad, taps and an echo.

Exercises at the rostrum were conducted by Prof. Leslie V. Stock and opened with a selection by the Blue and Gray band. The Rev. Lawrence E. Rohrbaugh, Biglerville United Brethren pastor, gave the invocation and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was read by Barbara Yoder. Mary Prosser recited "In Flanders Fields." The Rev. Mr. Berkheimer spoke after a selection by the Biglerville band.

The Rev. Mr. Rohrbaugh pronounced the benediction and the exercises closed with the "Star Spangled Banner" by the Blue and Gray band.

Out Of The Past

From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and
The Gettysburg Times
ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

The celebrated Siamese twins are again exhibiting themselves in the Cities. They have been engaged in farming in North Carolina for a number of years, are married, and have families. They were in New York last week.

Town Meeting: By a notice in our paper it will be seen that the Burgess has very properly called a meeting of the citizens to take measures for cleansing the Borough, in view of the approaching cholera. This measure is being resorted to by the cities and towns around us, and it is time that we were up and doing. Our town certainly needs it—and the sooner it is done the better.

Married: On the 17th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Good, Mrs. Charles W. Doll, of New Oxford, Adams county, to Miss Sarah A. Witt, of York.

At Montrose, on the 26th of April, Mr. A. D. Myers to Miss Caroline, daughter of Mr. John Wilson, deceased, formerly of Gettysburg.

On the 24th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Holland, Mrs. John L. Ziegler to Miss Elvira Cook—both of this borough.

On Tuesday, the 29th inst., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Mr. Samuel Delap, to Miss Anna Barbara Boyer—both of Menallen township.

On Thursday, the 31st inst., by the same, Mr. George Hoos, to Miss Anna Margaret Peters—both of Cumberland township.

On the 17th inst., by the Rev. J. Ziegler, Mr. Henry Speck, of this county, to Miss Mary Ann England, of Bedford county.

New Orleans: The last telegraphic dispatch from New Orleans gives distressing accounts. They have not been able to close the breach in the levee. The water is still rising and labor is lost in attempting to subdue it. Half the city was then under water. The inhabitants are flying from their houses and business matters are being wound up.

Decoration Day: Saturday, May 30, is the day designated by the Grand Army of the Republic for strewing the graves of the fallen heroes of the Republic. The ceremonies in this place were under charge of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9. Early in the day large numbers of people from the surrounding country commenced to pour into town. By two o'clock, when the procession formed the streets were crowded.

A large wagon, handsomely decorated with floral wreaths and national flags, surmounted with an equestrian statue of Gen. Meade, bore the floral tributes and attracted much attention. The members of Post No. 9, honorably discharged soldiers, the Philomathean Society of Pa. College, with a number of citizens, were marshaled by Lieut. J. W. Cress, and moved promptly to the National Cemetery, the Gettysburg Brass Band furnishing excellent music. At the Orphans Home, the Orphans marched into line with the procession.

The day was extremely hot and sultry, but the ceremonies attracted, as usual, a very large crowd, the ladies preponderating.

On entering the grounds the Band played the Dead March. At the stand, "Blest are the martyred dead who lie," &c., was sung to the tune of "Old Hundred." After an impressive Prayer by Rev. M. L. Ganoe, Fr. Heyer Weaver, a member of Post No. 9, delivered the address.

The exercises at the stand closed with Prayer and the Benediction by the Rev. Dr. Keefer, after which the flowers were carefully and reverently strewed by the Orphans of the Homestead, on the graves of the heroes, who in July, 1863, gave their lives to their country, and whose remains repose in the National Cemetery.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
A RARE EXPERIENCE

At the invitation of my friend Prof. Herbert F. West, head of Comparative Literature at Dartmouth College, I gave a talk to his class of boys about my favorite nature writers. It was my first experience before a class. It brought back happy memories of when I was in one of those similar seats occupied by that fine class of boys.

After this enjoyable event, I wandered about the campus, watched ball games, talked with students, noted the Seniors sit proudly upon their coveted rail fence, cutting initials upon their new Dartmouth canes, visited the fine Baker library, and accompanied with my camera about this beautiful college setting.

Being the guest of a great institution for a day is a rare experience, but it was highlighted by a dinner with Robert Frost, America's beloved poet, at the Hanover Inn. That over we adjourned to the attractive home of Prof. West, upon one of the lovely Hanover hills. There we spent an entire evening in talk that I shall never forget. Robert Frost has always been a favorite poet of mine, but to listen to his talk for several hours is an outstanding event.

Few poets have been so honored as has Robert Frost, and justly so. Poetry was in his blood, but he had to wait twenty years before recognition. His first published poem was entitled "My Butterfly." Its second stanza is a favorite of mine and I asked Mr. Frost to inscribe it in my first edition of his book, "A Boy's Will," published first in England. He gladly did this stating it was remarkable that I had selected this particular item, additionally inscribing his book to me "for noticing what in my opinion are the lines I really began my poetry with."

I was especially interested in Robert Frost's broad and wholesome viewpoints, and his generous tributes to other poets. He has a quaint humor. His opinions are incisive and honestly his own. His tastes are simple, and he is a friendly human being, and genuinely American. His closest companion is his beautiful black-haired shepherd dog, to which he is devoted. I wish he would immortalize it with a poem!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Note-Books."

This is of all they'd ask:
Full devotion to their task.

We, as once were they, to be
Freedom's living guarantee;

Hope of all mankind oppressed;
Guardians of all that's best;

Builders of the better way;
Faithful to the pledge we say;

Teaching to our growing youth
Stronger far than might is truth.

And, if lost were liberty,
Nothing then worth while could be.

Such devotion must be ours
Or in vain are flags and flowers.

A number of crusading ladies were arrested last week in Pittsburgh and fined by the Mayor, for obstructing the streets by singing and praying in the neighborhood of saloons. They appealed to the Court of Common Pleas, and the case was brought before Judge Stowe on a writ of certiorari. On Thursday he gave a decision, reversing the decision of the acting Mayor, and ordered the fines to be refunded. A Pittsburgh despatch says the ladies are jubilant over their victory.

Gov. Hartranft was present and addressed the schools.

16 KILLED IN PENNSYLVANIA OVER WEEK-END

(By The Associated Press)
Pennsylvania's Memorial Day week-end accidental death toll reached 16 today.

Fourteen of the victims died in highway crashes as the Commonwealth joined the nation in marking the long week-end holiday.

Favorable weather sent thousands flocking to seashore and mountain resorts. Other Pennsylvanians celebrated at home with parades, civic rallies and family picnics.

The latest highway death reported in the state was that of Gary McDonald, 10, of Havertown, near Philadelphia. He died in Harrisburg hospital of injuries sustained in an auto-truck crash.

An auto containing the bodies of four youths from Newell, W. Va., was discovered near the surface of the Ohio river at Georgetown, Pa. The four had been missing since Wednesday.

Pennsylvania state police speculated the four drove onto the ferry at Georgetown and were unable to stop after traveling the length of the boat. The ferry doesn't operate at night.

The dead were identified as James Young, 25; his wife Louise, 18; Elmer Hill, 30, and his wife, Betty, 19.

Plane Crashes
A Dayton, Ohio, couple suffered injuries in the crash of their light plane about 20 miles east of Uniontown. Hospital physicians said that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bloomer apparently were not hurt seriously. Bloomer is 26, his wife 23.

In other mishaps:
Robert Murray, 18, Grand Forks, N. D., a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, was struck and killed by a fast-moving Pennsylvania railroad train.

His companion, Ward Reynolds Brown, 19, Duluth, Minn., a classmate, was injured seriously. The two had been playing tennis and took a short cut across the railroad tracks. The engineer of the train, Charles Dougherty, 48, is charged with manslaughter and assault and battery.

Mrs. Little Abrams, 33, and her son Charles Abrams, Jr., of Audubon, N. J., were killed in an auto-truck collision on the Pennsylvania turnpike near New Baltimore. The woman's husband and an infant son suffered serious injuries.

Aged Woman Killed
Minnie M. Boals, 82, of Mansfield, Ohio, was killed and two others hurt as their car struck a culvert on the turnpike at Breezewood.

Rosemary Devlin, seven, of Philadelphia, was run over and killed by a car near the home of her grandparents at Snowshoe, Centre county. Hospital attendants said they learned the girl accidentally released the brakes of a car and then tumbled under its wheels.

Dorothy Sweeney, five, of Pittsburgh, was struck and killed by a street car as she ran home to get out of the rain.

Clyde McColl, 28, of Clarendon, was found dead in a foot of water at Farnsworth Run. Friends said he was helping distribute trout to the stream from a nearby government pool.

Ralph S. Dunlap, 54, a design engineer of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company, Wilmington, Del., collapsed and died at the wheel of his car near Elizabethtown, Lancaster county. Doctors said he suffered a heart attack.

Dies Of Broken Neck
General Odum, 71, of Philadelphia, died of a broken neck several hours after he was struck by a car on a Philadelphia street.

William Williams, 21, Scranton, was killed and two companions seriously injured when the car in which they were riding left the highway in West Scranton and struck a tree.

Mrs. Robert Aspleford, 25, Carbondale, died when the automobile in which she was riding went out of control and plowed into a guard rail.

Kindred McCleary, an associate professor of architecture at Carnegie Institute of Technology, was killed in a fall from the roof of his summer cottage at Confluence.

Phillip A. Chabaso, 19, of Glad-den, Pa., was killed as his motorcycle struck a pole on Route 519, three miles from Bridgeville.

Adams Scheduled For Housing Aid

Harrisburg, May 30 (AP)—Allocations under Gov. James H. Duff's $15,000,000 housing program will be divided in the state on a population basis, says the State Planning board.

Executive Director F. A. Pitkin disclosed yesterday that the commonwealth has been sliced into nine districts for the purpose of making the grants under the program authorized by the 1949 Legislature.

"The Governor wants to get going on this housing program and so do we," he said. "Actual work in handing out the money will start as soon as administration details are ironed out."

A detailed announcement, he said, will be made later in the week on how local communities can apply for the housing grants.

The legislation calls for outright grants for both urban redevelopment and slum clearance as well as low-rent homes.

Tentative allocations on a population basis as listed by Pitkin include: South central (Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster, Northumberland, Montour, Union, Snyder, Juniata, Perry, Adams, York, Cumberland, Mifflin, Huntingdon, Blair, Bedford, Fulton, Franklin counties)—$1,987,530.

TWO AMERICAN HOSTAGES SLAIN BY BOLIVIANS

La Paz, Bolivia, May 30 (AP)—Two of seven American engineers seized as hostages by strikers at the Patino tin mines have been reported killed. A third American is missing.

The rioting strikers hurled dynamite bombs at troops sent to the mines. Casualties, mostly among the soldiers, were said to number almost 150.

D. C. Derringer, general manager of the Patino mines in Catavi, said in a telephone interview the dead men were T. H. O'Connor of Pasadena, Calif., and Albert Krefling of Seattle, Wash. He said a Bolivian engineer named Vargas also was killed.

O'Connor was reported shot in the neck while at the union's headquarters. Krefling was said to have died of wounds caused when a striker threw a stick of dynamite at the hostages.

Derringer said the three were among 15 hostages seized by the rioting strikers Saturday. The workers broke into the homes of the 15, seized them and took them to union headquarters, where they were reported beaten. The 15 included the seven Americans, one Argentine and seven Bolivians. Derringer said the missing man is H. T. Peterson of Biwabik, Minn.

He said three men were hospitalized: Wilbur J. Cook of Reno, Nev.; Pat Green of Wenatchee, Wash., and Floyd W. Erickson of Cyrus, Minn. The other abducted engineers were identified as Richard D. Elliott, who formerly lived at Pullman, Wash., and T. R. Woods-Smith, whose home address was not available.

The American embassy sent a plane to the Catavi region to evacuate relatives and dependents of American employees in the mines. An American doctor from the U. S. Health Mission went along to help treat the wounded.

African Golden Daisies Praised

The Cape of Good Hope, in South Africa, has contributed many showy plants and most of them do well in the New York area except where summer temperatures are excessively high. The African golden daisy, or cape marigold, is one of these treasures and can stand more heat than most others. It is Dimorphotheca aurantiaca and has glorious rich orange-gold flowers more than two inches across.

The plants grow about a foot tall and often spread to twice that size. In addition to this species there are hybrids which include a wide range of fine colors. Sowing the seeds outdoors in spring after danger from night frosts is the simplest way of growing them; or they may be started indoors a month sooner by sowing individually in small pots.

Kindred McCleary, an associate professor of architecture at Carnegie Institute of Technology, was killed in a fall from the roof of his summer cottage at Confluence.

Phillip A. Chabaso, 19, of Glad-den, Pa., was killed as his motorcycle struck a pole on Route 519, three miles from Bridgeville.

A COSTLY FALLACY WITH POULTRY

The inexcusable practice of keeping roosters with laying hens, which continues in an unreasonably high percentage of flocks in this country, is costing poultry owners (and consumers, too) millions of dollars annually. And while advice against this folly may seem puerile to many readers, the error is so widely prevalent that warnings must be sounded frequently.

It is amazing to many persons to learn that innumerable poultry owners, especially those with small flocks, firmly believe that hens will not lay, in fact, cannot lay, unless male birds are kept with the hens. Let's briefly examine the fallacies behind this mistaken idea.

First, to blast into what we trust is oblivion, it is once and for all stated that hens will produce eggs, better eggs and just as many eggs, if there is not a rooster within twenty thousand miles of the flock throughout the hens' lives. Next, the only purpose of having male birds with layers is to produce eggs for hatching. And too much emphasis cannot be placed on the truth that the only eggs fit for human consumption as food are eggs produced by hens without contact with roosters.

An egg laid by a hen with male birds in the flock is called a fertile egg. Such an egg begins to deteriorate (decay) in but a few hours of summer temperature after it is laid. As already stated, a fertile egg is suitable but for one purpose and one purpose alone—to hatch. It is almost impossible, even with modern methods of refrigeration, to get a fertile egg from the farm to the consumer without its losing all or most of its food value, often becoming completely unfit for eating.

On the other hand, an infertile egg, one laid by a hen having no recent contact with a rooster, will not spoil even after several days of fairly high temperature. It retains most of its edible values after unreasonably long exposures to ordinary outdoor temperatures. And if it is kept under normal conditions, it moves from the flock to the consumer in almost full retention of its freshness and goodness.

These simple statements indicate how American poultry owners are suffering tremendous losses each year from the stupid practice of allowing roosters to remain with laying hens around the year. They explain why so large a percentage of eggs are found unfit for any use when they reach consumer markets. Such amazing facts lead to a few terse but sound suggestions:

1. If home produced eggs are not wanted for hatching purposes, keep no roosters at any time.

2. If eggs are produced for hatching, allow the roosters to remain with hens only during and slightly before such a period when eggs are desired for setting. Then, either sell male birds or pen them separately until fertile eggs are again wanted.

3. Never under any circumstances deceive the consuming public by marketing fertile eggs for food purposes.

4. Produce only infertile eggs for market and gather them at least twice daily in warm weather and keep them in a relatively cool place until they are sold.

5. Discuss this subject with neighbors, even though it may appear childish to poultry owners who know otherwise. The continued needless drain from our poultry industry should cease.

Rhododendrons and azaleas are among the most difficult plants to grow.

Boxwood Leaf Pest Controlled By DDT

The boxwood leafminer is a serious pest over a wide area and unless checked it will seriously disfigure the plants if it does not ruin them.

The old formula for control employed four ounces of black-strap molasses and two teaspoonfuls of nicotine sulphate in one gallon of water, which had to be applied at the time the flies were emerging from the leaves.

This rather messy concoction has been superseded by DDT. Two ounces of a wettable DDT powder in three gallons of water are sprayed on the plants when the larvae within the leaves show a brown coloring at their heads. The time they reach this stage depends on the location and exposure. It may be expected toward the latter part of May in the vicinity of New York.

Opening up one or several leaves at two-day intervals will show their progress and insure timely application. The spray must be applied before the flies emerge, so that it will kill them as they break through.

Azalea leaves may turn yellow from a number of causes. Two of these are fungus infections and drying out of the soil a few weeks before the color changes. Leaf yellowing due to an iron deficiency may occur when the plants are fertilized with calcium or sodium nitrate, which decreases the soil acidity and makes iron unavailable.

back into their full values again. Sudan grass may be seeded any time from mid-May until late June. Normally it is ready to pasture in four weeks after sowing.

Grazing animals actually do the work of harvesting when they feed on pasture. If the pasturage is fresh and plentiful, they need not "work" more than a few hours each day to obtain all the forage they need. But as pastures lose their vigor and volume in late June and early July, animals are compelled to graze all day to satisfy even partially their appetites.

What is the solution of problems resulting from all-summer dependence on permanent pastures? Of course, as frequently mentioned here, fencing permanent pasture fields into three or four plots and rotating animals from one to another will go far in enabling grasses to maintain a fair degree of vigor throughout the summer. But this is still not the most satisfactory solution. Even rotated permanent pastures should be amply supplemented by at least a few acres of emergency pasture and perhaps a small acreage of soiling crops.

On a scale of careful planning ahead, farmers may have alfalfa, sweet clover, other clovers, lespedeza and other perennials ready for emergency use in summer. On a short-notice scale, one of the suitable annuals must be used. In this latitude there are but four reliable stand-bys—dwarf Essex rape, Sudan grass, soybeans, and cowpeas. Of course, it is sometimes possible to utilize oats, rye or other cereal in these emergency roles.

Soybeans and cowpeas are most valuable as summer pasturage for hogs and sheep. Both can be seeded at this time to provide grazing in late summer.

Rape is another excellent pasture for hogs and sheep, coming to grazing size within a few weeks after sowing. All three of these crops should be grazed in a rotation scheme to avoid over-grazing.

Sudan grass remains one of the better emergency pastures for cattle, work animals and livestock in general. It is one of the best annuals to survive potential droughts. It must be grazed heavily to keep it at its peak of palatability. By the time Sudan grass begins to lose its pasturage goodness in early fall, the permanent pastures will be coming

It may also occur when the soil is heavy and compact, overwatered, poorly drained, over-fertilized or unusually cold.

Deficiencies of calcium, potassium or magnesium may also cause yellowing. Gardeners can correct yellowing due to any of these deficiencies by spraying the plants with a one-fourth per cent solution of iron ammonium citrate (green pearls). The effect of the iron citrate is temporary unless the deficient element is supplied and the unfavorable soil condition improved.

Other Systems Fail "We must always remember that an integral part of the American character is forever to seek ways and means to improve their lives, their fortunes, their jobs, and their government. This is one reason we have been such a progressive and successful nation. On the other hand, this same restless spirit may make our minds susceptible to the false promises which are so lavishly made by the disciples of economic systems that seem at first glance to offer greater benefits to a greater number of people. Unfortunately, many Americans do not think about the source of these promises. They do not remember that these economic systems and ideologies have failed miserably in the past in countries where they have been tried. They do not realize that the security which these systems offer must be paid for by giving up the privileges which we Americans believe are the basic rights of man.

"We must all realize that we are living in a new and different kind of world. We have never before found it necessary to take an active personal part in defending our way of life, because, until a relatively few years ago, the American Way was accepted by all our people. Now it is under attack by false disciples of foreign doctrines.

"Truly, America is at the crossroads.

Fight For Freedom "Because of recurring wars and attacks against us, we are obliged to labor in the aftermath of war. When one considers that even without the threat of aggression the job of making democracy live is not easy, it can be seen how tremendous is our present responsibility. What we must do, from now on, in order to preserve our way of life, is to reinforce the faith of our people in the American way of life. world, safeguards for human liberties were woven into the very fabric of the law of the land. They established a republican form of government, and they set out the rules for its operation in a living document called the Constitution.

"As the years passed, and as the United States grew stronger politically and economically, people in other countries regarded America as a land of opportunity — millions upon millions of them left their homes in foreign lands, where life was regimented and opportunities restricted, and came to our hospitable shores — many of them found their final resting place here in this hallowed ground. And today, millions more wish with all their hearts that they were 'over here' instead of 'over there.'

Poisonous Propaganda

"The great source of America's strength is our freedom, our individual initiative. We know it, but so do our enemies. And as you would naturally expect, those who seek to destroy our power and our freedom are concentrating their attacks on this keystone of our success. They know that if it collapses, the entire structure will fall.

"Today one-third of the cost of government is being spent for national defense. I cannot tell you whether this huge sum of money is too much or too little, but obviously, in the light of present world conditions, whatever sum is necessary to keep us militarily strong is justified. I can tell you that no army, no navy, no air force, however efficient and large it may be, can protect the minds and hearts of the American people against the poisonous propaganda which is being fed to them. The only protection against this form of attack is a determined and continuous counter-attack, a barrage of truth which will completely nullify the bombardment of falsehoods to which the American people are being constantly subjected.

Attack From Abroad

"We in America must guard against taking liberty for granted and regarding it as a natural state of man. We must face the fact that there are forces, and in some places our own people at work, who are striving to deprive us of those fundamental rights for which so many brave men and women have fought and died. The origin of these forces lies in foreign lands where people live in poverty, in misery, and in fear — where a citizen may not own land, or select his job, employ others to work for him; in short, individual freedom and initiative is unknown — he is a slave of the state. They do not have freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, or freedom of religion, and their press and radio are censored by their government. Surely, with a knowledge of these facts, the American people are too wise, too alert, and too intelligent, to be taken in by the promises and propaganda of alien doctrines, no matter how subtle or clever they may be. However, this belief in our strength may, in fact, be our weakness. Many of our people simply do not realize that liberty is not a permanent right, but something to be cherished, protected, and at times defended.

Other Systems Fail "We must always remember that an integral part of the American character is forever to seek ways and means to improve their lives, their fortunes, their jobs, and their government. This is one reason we have been such a progressive and successful nation. On the other hand, this same restless spirit may make our minds susceptible to the false promises which are so lavishly made by the disciples of economic systems that seem at first glance to offer greater benefits to a greater number of people. Unfortunately, many Americans do not think about the source of these promises. They do not remember that these economic systems and ideologies have failed miserably in the past in countries where they have been tried. They do not realize that the security which these systems offer must be paid for by giving up the privileges which we Americans believe are the basic rights of man.

"We must all realize that we are living in a new and different kind of world. DO DOUBLE DUTY

A firing squad became a decoration committee Sunday morning. Members of the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars fired the salute at the Spanish War veterans services and then adjourned, still in uniform to the National cemetery where they placed the decorations on the rostrum for today's event. Among those assisting in the work were John F. Rummel, Donald Hubbard, Francis Wisotzky, Edgar Bowling, Orlyn Hixon, LaVerne King and Arthur J. Roth.

SGT. BALDWIN GIVES HISTORY OF 'TAPS' CALL

With Memorial services held over the week-end in many communities and cemeteries throughout Adams county, in honor of the men who fought in the nation's wars and are buried in these cemeteries, "Taps," the bugle notes which conclude most programs, became familiar again to thousands.

The following history of "Taps" was compiled by Master Sergeant William G. Baldwin, chief trumpeter, Sons of Union Veterans Reserves, under the title "The Origin of Taps." It was taken from an official War Department manual of bugle calls.

"At the close of the battle of Harrison's Landing, near Richmond, Va., August, 1862, Brig. Gen. Daniel Butterfield was checking casualty reports as the result of this battle, which was barely a Union victory. "As he noticed among the list of those killed some of his best officers, he heard his bugler sounding "Taps," which was the last routine call at that time, meaning "lights out and quiet."

"The general, who had been a professor of music in civil life, ordered his bugler to report to him. When the bugler arrived, the general handed him a musical sketch of his emotions, inspired by the report of those killed in action.

"He said: 'Sergeant, can you sound a bugle by your reading the notes before you?' The sergeant replied: 'Yes, sir.' The general said: 'I will hold a lantern and I want you to sound this call I wrote.' The bugler did so. A few changes were made, and the following night the call was sounded after 'Tattoo.' Other regimental and brigade buglers repeated the call and General Butterfield christened it 'Taps.'

One month later the War Department made it official and to this day it still is used by all branches of the armed forces.

"Since its origin, several verses have been added to the music. Some are as follows:

"Go to sleep, peaceful sleep,
May the soldier or sailor God keep.

Aged Treasurer Of U.S. Is Killed

Washington, May 30 (AP)—William A. Julian, aged treasurer of the United States, was killed yesterday morning in an automobile accident as he drove to a country club to play a round of golf.

Julian had served in his treasury post for 16 years and during that time had issued $87,000,000 worth of currency. His signature appears on U. S. paper money, opposite that of the secretary of the treasury.

A quiet man, he was seen little in formal society. Various records gave his age at from 78 to 87; friends said the latter was probably most nearly correct. Julian himself never discussed his age.

Death came in a head-on collision with another car on a county road in nearby Bethesda, Md. The two men in the other car were only slightly hurt; no charges were filed in the accident.

Julian was appointed to the job of treasurer by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933.

Sue B. Smith, injured in the automobile accident in which Jack Maenak, Gettysburg college senior, was killed, is a daughter of Robert J. Smith, cruise director on ocean liners, who was featured in an article in The Saturday Evening Post, May 14. "Everybody Call Me Bob" is the title of the article by Evan Wylie. It is attractively illustrated with seven colored photographs, including one of Mr. Smith.
